SUMMER in New England offers all the advantages of bright skies, warm sun, thin clothing and outdoor pleasures, with a minimum of the misery which heat brings to so many sections. A hot wave in New England is exceptional if it lasts beyond the third day. Even the large cities, along the coast, at least reap the benefit of an east wind which brings speedy relief. The average Summer temperature in New England is about 70 degrees.

The New England climate has had to swallow a good many insults, but life insurance statistics show that the life of the average individual is four years longer in New England than it is in other sections of the United States. It is a vigorous, stimulating climate, varied, always interesting, and in Summer almost unvaryingly delightful. Sea breezes and mountain air both have their devotees; in New England you may make a different choice every day if you desire change.

Summer in New England is vacation time and life is keyed to a vacation pitch. Every village has its Summer visitors. Regattas gladden the coast; golf and tennis tournaments flourish. All the joys of swimming, riding, mountain-climbing and canoeing that Summer can offer are to be found in New England.

Moreover, New England is accessible: By airplane, there are more than a hundred airports and landing fields and several commercial airlines operating regularly; by motor, over excellent roads; by water, private yacht or coast-wise lines; by railroad, offering special week-end and Summer services, the traveler may penetrate and explore. It is about 600 miles as the crow flies from New York to Bangor, Me. The width of New England at any point is about a half-day's motor trip.

Within this small area is an amazing diversity of landscape and scenery. All manner of accommodations, from the most luxurious and sophisticated hotels to tents in authentic "wilds," and the facilities for an endless variety of sports and amusements are available.

New booklets displaying New England's recreation attractions are being issued this year by railroads, hotels, and State and community organizations all over the six States.

COME TO HISTORIC SALEM

The Cradle of American Maritime Supremacy

SOME of the famous Clipper Ships that carried the Flag to the world. Center of the glamorous Far-Eastern Trade. Visit its famous museums . . . see the crusty old sea chests of those renowned Yankee skippers who sought fame and fortune when our Country was new. Each street—the very houses themselves—step out from the pages of glorious history. And the salt air breathes its own romance of new lands and adventure. You are invited to visit Nathaniel Hawthorne's immortal House of Seven Gables—to explore the mysterious Hidden Staircase—to forget for awhile all today's little worries. Across the garden lies Hathaway House (1682), lovely with antiquity and comfortable in modernity. Here you may stay in a charming room for as long as you like. Delicious meals with the old New England flavor, lulled to sleep by the whispering trees, the soft murmur of Salem Harbor, and the satisfying knowledge that the cost is so little.

Nature Lavish In Her Gifts To New York

NATURE has been kind to New York, endowing the State with some of the highest mountains in the eastern half of the United States, a profusion of lakes, a number of majestic rivers and a generous salt-water frontage on the open Atlantic and Long Island Sound. From Niagara Falls to the eastern tip of Long Island, it is historic ground and many of its scenic features have become world famous as the settings of great works of fiction from the time of Washington Irving and James Fenimore Cooper down to the present.

New York City is a Summer resort of importance, drawing warm weather visitors by the thousands from all parts of the country, but it is of other parts of the State that one naturally thinks when discussing vacation playgrounds.

Long Island has its exclusive colonies of the "Four Hundred" and shelters the country homes of many of the country's wealthiest families, and it also contains Coney Island, the amusement centre of the millions, so that the range of choice embraces every size of purse. Polo, yachting, tennis, golf and every variety of sport here find fullest expression.

The valley of the broad Hudson, featured by the Palisades and the Highlands, provides a playground of a very different scenic character. The wooded Catskill Mountains west of the Hudson are populated densely with Summer visitors, who find this region quickly accessible from the city. Further west and north one comes to the Cooper country and the Finger Lakes region, with Watkins Glen as one of its impressive natural wonders.

Northward bound, one passes through Albany and Saratoga Springs, famous resorts of society and turf enthusiasts; sees the Saratoga Battlefield, scene of one of the decisive victories of the Revolution; and then crosses the divide to Lake George and Lake Champlain, celebrated alike for their beauty and their historical associations.

Northward and westward lie the Adirondacks, a vast park of rock battlemented peaks, ranking high among the country's most beautiful and most accessible playgrounds. And so on to the Thousand Islands and the Canadian border.

The Empire State has realized the value of its scenic assets and has developed a great State park system which makes them available to the public. It has spent many millions of dollars in building highways so that the motorist may penetrate the "wild" regions, and its boat lines and railroads offer unsurpassed facilities for the vacationist.

Ease of Access Adds to Charms of New Jersey

IN New Jersey, Nature has prepared an ideal vacation ground so varied in its opportunities that one will experience no difficulty in finding a place for rest or pleasure.

Seashore and mountains, rivers and woods, lakes and brooks are all there, together with their related recreational activities in a range embracing the elaborate requirements of the millionaire and the simple needs of the plain citizen who must watch his dollars.

With the State's broad expanse of Atlantic coast frontage almost one continuous line of Summer resorts, the person who wants crowds, glitter, a ceaseless round of amusements or the one who desires quiet, restful surroundings with only the beat of the waves on the beach can spend his vacation in a spot exactly suited to his temperament. At many resorts the bather can have his choice of breasting the Atlantic breakers or of playing in the calm waters of an inlet or bay.

Those who prefer the woods, lakes and mountains also have a wealth of playgrounds from which to choose. With its boundaries exclusively water except for the narrow stretch on the north, New Jersey possesses a widely diversified scenic character. "Wild" country is to be found within sight of the skyscrapers of New York City.

For those whose vacation time is limited, accessibility is an important factor in deciding where to go, and one of New Jersey's strong appeals is the ease with which its vacation haunts can be reached. Its resorts are close to the great centres of population, so close that many of them may be listed in the Summer commuting zone, and yet they offer the charms of a complete change of scene.

The State's system of motor roads is unexcelled, with four-lane and six-lane express highways to provide rapid movement where traffic is heavy, and no spot in the entire State is more than a few miles distant from an excellent hard-surfaced highway. The many railroads provide frequent and rapid service, and boat lines add to the variety of travel facilities available.

Golf courses and facilities for all Summer sports are dotted closely throughout the State, and, whatever one's desires may be, New Jersey is prepared to meet them in full measure.

STONEHARBOR

The Seashore —It's Best—

Calls You to Enjoy
Vacationland!

Here at Stone Harbor you will find that charm and delight of out-of-door life at its best. For Stone Harbor is different, and in this difference lies its greatest charm.

The Resort has every modern convenience—gas, electricity, artesian water, good streets, sewers, sidewalks and a splendid Boardwalk built over a marvelous bathing beach. Hotels, boarding houses, bungalows and cottages at prices to fit every purse.

Vacation means a variety of things to a variety of persons. To some it means a long motor trip, to some a sea voyage, to some a quiet retreat near good fishing waters. To sum it all up, however, vacation means something out of the ordinary routine and a real change. You will find every wish and desire at Stone Harbor.

Old Dominion Scenic Features Vary in Appeal

TRADITION plays an immeasurable part in the lives of all Americans. This being true, Virginia, the Mother of States, holds an especial appeal to the tourists of this country and of the world.

On crossing the Potomac River at Harpers Ferry, one enters through the Valley of Virginia into what is truly known as "The Beckoning Land." In this section of the Old Dominion, the Valley of the Shenandoah, are to be found many matchless caverns; also the Natural Bridge and a wide panorama of mountains and countryside beauty, forming one great mosaic of nature. At the southern extremity in this section lies the nationally known Peaks of Otter, mighty sentinels, from the crests of which the surrounding country spreads out a great and multi-colored map.

Further south, in leaving the Valley, one travels over Virginia's famous roads into the southwestern section of the State known as the "Empire of the Southwest." Here, nestling in the crest of the Blue Ridge Mountains lies Mountain Lake. Further on one passes through the Natural Tunnel. An upward winding paved road leads to the top of the Pinnacle, the view from which is unsurpassed. In the distance can be seen the towering crest of White Top Mountain, the highest point in the State south of the Blue Ridge.

In the search for health, happiness, beauty and historical shrines these are all to be found in the Piedmont, Tidewater and Northern Neck sections of the State. Within this area is located the City Beautiful, Richmond, the capital of the Confederacy and of the Old Dominion. Near by lie the triple shrines of American liberty—Jamestown, Yorktown and Williamsburg. This part of the State borders on the Atlantic, which here offers unsurpassed bathing, golfing and sporting facilities, and is known as the Tourists' Rendezvous of the Eastern Seaboard.

The Skyline Drive, in the Shenandoah National Park, beginning at Panorama on the Lee Highway, runs south forty-two miles along the crest of the Blue Ridge Mountains to the Spotswood Trail. This engineering feat, put through by the Federal Bureau of Public Roads, is unrivaled in this country and said to be equaled only by a panoramic roadway in Switzerland. Not far removed is located the Presidential Camp on the Rapidan. This Camp was conveyed as a gift by former President Hoover to Virginia for the use of future Presidents of the Nation.

The national shrines of Mount Vernon and Monticello represent but two of the homes of Virginia's seven Presidents. These are perpetuated as National shrines and are open to the public.

Williamsburg Inn

In the Heart of the Colonial Capital of Virginia

THE CITY UNDER RESTORATION

All the unique attractions of Williamsburg—its fine old Colonial homes and gardens, its historic public buildings, included in the restoration of Colonial Williamsburg—are readily accessible to guests of the Inn.

There is a refreshing new charm in the old capital of Virginia—with its reconstructed Raleigh Tavern, recalling historic associations with great patriots of the 18th century—its Colonial Court House, containing a rare collection of fragments recovered from excavating more than 100 Colonial foundations—the Wren Building on the campus of the College of William and Mary, the oldest academic building in America—Bruton Parish Church, "Court Church of Colonial Virginia"—the Governor's Palace, and Colonial Capitol, both of which are now under reconstruction on original foundations. Historic Jamestown and Yorktown, great landmarks in the Colonial period of American history, are within easy motoring distance, as are a number of the famous old plantations along the James River.

In this superb setting the Inn provides modern comforts and complete service—fine Southern cooking—service without tipping—rates scaled to 1933 budgets.

TRAVEL IN RUSSIA EXTENDS TO REMOTER SECTIONS NOW

Few tourists ever penetrated the borders of old Russia. When they did, their visits were usually confined to a few of the larger Western cities. Within the past five years the Soviets have converted this huge country into a veritable Mecca for tourists, says a bulletin issued by Intourist, the Soviet State Travel Bureau. The once inaccessible spaces of the Far East and Soviet Middle Asia may now be visited by the most diffident traveler. The great Volga is cruised in comfortable steamers. The mountain passes of the mighty Caucasus are familiar to the tourist. Thousands of travelers now know the beauties of the Crimea and the Black Sea coast. Strange faces and costumes once rare in Moscow and other large cities are now a commonplace.

TRAVEL IN THE SOVIET UNION OFFERS

1. New life in a changed social and economic society about which the whole world is talking—collective farms, planned industry, communal life, Soviet culture and education.
2. New scenic vistas in a vast land off the beaten travel track—stately Leningrad; Moscow, the throbbing hub of a planned economy; the Caucasus, highest mountains in Europe; Cruising the Volga; Colorful Ukraine; Crimea, the pearl of the Black Sea.
3. Amazingly low rates for 15 standard itineraries of from 5 to 31 days; or, if you prefer, select your own itinerary.
4. All-inclusive service—hotels, meals, guide-interpreters, transportation and sightseeing in the Soviet Union, Soviet visa; all under the auspices of one organization.

THE MEDITERRANEAN LANDS

WHERE THE ACTIVE RULER OF MODERN ITALY HAS HIS DESK:
THE PALAZZO DI VENEZIA,
Which Houses the Offices of Premier Mussolini, as Seen From the Recently Completed Victor Emanuel Monument. It Is in the Heart of Rome, Not Far From the Forum.

The "Great Sea" Offers a Wealth of Travel Thrills

THE lands surrounding the Mediterranean possess a profound attraction for the American because their many surviving monuments of ancient civilization offer such a contrast to the newness of his own country.

Spain, Italy, Greece, Palestine and Egypt are lands which make vivid the pages of history. They are lands of the past and yet they figure large in the headlines of the world's news of today.

Spain, battleground of the Carthaginian and the Roman legions, is one of the newest of modern republics, conducting a momentous adventure in the rebuilding of her institutions.

Italy, with the Eternal City as her capital, and with the memories of centuries of world dominion, now looks to the future instead of the past, though her rulers zealously preserve the relics of ancient splendors.

Greece, with the Parthenon looking down on an expanding Athens, is endeavoring to establish and maintain democratic government in keeping with the spirit of the day.

Palestine, birthplace of great world religions, is the scene of an epoch-making experiment in the establishment of a Jewish homeland.

Egypt, treasure house of the archeologist, continues to yield discoveries which month by month add to our understanding of history and of the modes of life of a civilization that was ancient before the era of Greece and Rome. One of the most interesting of recent excavations in Egypt is that now in progress near the Pyramids of Gizeh, where Dr. Selim Hassan of the University of Cairo is uncovering the City of the Fourth Pyramid, which for almost fifty centuries had lain concealed beneath the desert sands.

All these regions are easily accessible to the American, for many agencies exist solely to minister to the comfort of the tourist. Whether he chooses to go "on his own" or to leave all arrangements to one of the service organizations, he can be sure that all around the Mediterranean basin his pathway will be made smooth; and the low passenger rates now in effect on the shipping lines make such a tour especially attractive at this time.

GERMANY

Germany Offers Vivid Contrasts for the Tourist

"SUMMER in Germany is the perfection of the beautiful!" It was Mark Twain who thus expressed his delight over the charms of the country of the Rhine, Black Forest, and the Bavarian Alps, of the land of Goethe, Beethoven and Wagner, attractions which have become standard expressions in the tourist dictionary.

A land of contrasts, endless variety, is Germany. There are modern skyscrapers next to buildings that were hundreds of years old when Columbus came to America, and gasoline stations on smooth automobile roads over which Roman legions marched 1,500 years ago. From the world's fastest railroad train you can telephone your reservation for twentieth-century accommodations to a hotel in which the Emperor Red Beard slept on his way to a crusade to the Holy Land. Modern giants of industry stand where the people still tell the folk-lore which the Grimm brothers gave to the wide world.

How fascinating the contrast between those great modern cities and those quaint little towns which time must have forgotten centuries ago, and where even the inhabitants seem to have retained the customs and habits of their forefathers of long before the Thirty Years' War! As picturesque as these little towns, in which every gabled roof and every bastion of the medieval town wall tells stories of great historical events, of heroic deeds and romantic adventures, are the native costumes that the country folk are still wearing all over the land.

This year music takes first rank among the entertainment which Germany offers during the Summer. It is Wagner Year and Brahms Year, in commemoration of the fiftieth anniversary of the death of one and the hundredth of the birth of the other of these two great German composers. Baireuth with its famous Wagner Cycle tops the list. Most of the larger cities are commemorating the anniversaries with special concert and opera performances, and throughout the Summer every town and village honors the two masters with their music.

There is a great variety of landscape, of climate and entertainment for the traveler to Germany.

A TOWN WHICH TIME HAS FORGOTTEN: A STREET IN ANCIENT NOERDLINGEN, GERMANY, Which Has Remained Virtually Unchanged Since the Thirty Years' War, As Seen Through One of the Old City Gates. In the Background Is St. Georg's Church With Its Tower 275 Feet High.

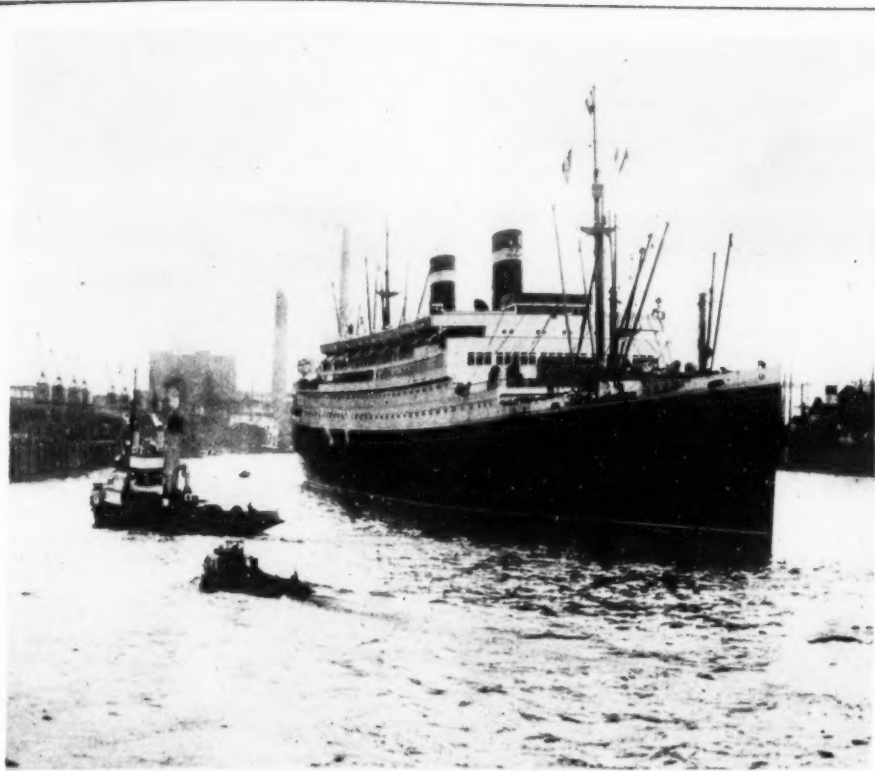

A STRONGHOLD BUILT 700 YEARS AGO: THE MARKSBURG, Which Is Said To Be the Only Castle Along the Storied Rhine Never Conquered and Destroyed By An Enemy.

WITNESS THE REBIRTH OF A NATION NEW GERMANY

Germany cordially invites your visit this summer. To all of Germany's famous tourist attractions there is now added the fascinating spectacle of the rebirth of a nation.

Germany bids you welcome to the land which now even more wins the distinction of being Europe's most interesting country. She has prepared an unsurpassed entertainment program, perfected her means of transportation, reduced her prices, and added to the comfort of her accommodations. Perfect order is continuously maintained, assuring security and comfort.

Germany, this summer, is again the center of Europe's music and art, which inhabit the very air you breathe in the land of the present Wagner Festival, symphonies, architecture, painting and sculpture. Nowhere else may the art lover and cultured traveler so enter into knowledge of the finer and better things of life. Great sports and social events add to the lustre of the German season.

Germany is more than ever your courteous and honest host. For a modest expenditure you can realize in Germany your life's dream: A truly ideal vacation. The thrill of traveling in this new-born land gives you undying memories endlessly renewed to imperishable beauty. Write for Booklet M. W. P.

GREAT BRITAIN

British Isles Are Full of Interest For Americans

The British Isles possess such a varied richness of scenic charm and such a wealth of historical associations that it is difficult to select any one feature for emphasis. The visitor's own background and special preferences must determine what particular scene is to provide the climax of his tour, but wherever he goes in England, Scotland, Wales and Ireland he is sure to find much of interest and settings which have been woven into the literature of the English-speaking world.

England has its industrial districts which are as modern as the airplane and its districts in which recent centuries seem to have passed without trace. Naturally one area of great interest to Americans is the Washington country—those three places intimately connected with the George Washington family, Sulgrave, Northampton and Little Brington. At Sulgrave, his ancestors lived for twenty years. The elder Lawrence Washington was twice Mayor of Northampton, and Little Brington was their home from 1560 to 1658. Sulgrave Manor is a recognized place of pilgrimage each year for thousands of Americans.

No visitor to England should miss the Shakespeare country, with Stratford-on-Avon preserving so many of the relics and scenes associated with the life of the greatest of English writers.

The Lake district still exhibits the beauties of which great poets sang, the Peak district and the Western Isles have lost none of the picturesqueness which made them famous, the great castles and cathedrals rear proudly skyward as in bygone centuries.

Scotland still possesses a scenic variety that beggars description and hundreds of structures endowed with historic and romantic associations. Rugged Wales has a distinctive charm and preserves in rare manner many of the relics and customs of a simpler age.

Ireland, with its Killarney Lakes of unsurpassed loveliness and its famous beauty spots, offers so many attractions as to challenge one to dare omit it from the itinerary.

To the American, one of the most striking features of the British Isles is their compactness. Long journeys are not necessary in order to reach the storied spots. Places of interest come in quick succession. The bonds of a common language and a common literature add to his joys in travel through a land which has contributed so much to the building of his own land.

Shut your books and open your eyes

You remember how Mr. Pickwick, when he was after Jingle, got into a mess about rescuing a schoolgirl and was locked up in a cupboard—well, that happened at Bury St. Edmunds, near Ipswich. Wouldn't you like to see the quaint old town of Great Yarmouth where Peggotty's boat was beached? From there step back three hundred years to Stratford and the house where Shakespeare was born. See the Bronte Country and famous York itself. A little further and you're in the Lake District with its memories of Wordsworth, Coleridge, Ruskin. Then over the Border to the land of glens and woods and waterfalls, where Burns wrote his songs and Scott his romances. A wonderful schedule! An unforgettable trip! Fast, luxurious trains take you everywhere.

IT is all very well for formal evening gowns to be made of fragile silks and satins, but the frock that is meant to whirl rapturously through a warm Summer evening at the country club needs to be of a material that may have its freshness renewed by a dip into the washtub. There are any number of youthful cottons, organdy, lawn, swiss and others that will stand this test with credit, and so will the new linens, both heavy and handkerchief weights, that have taken the town by storm.

TAKE special care of your hair this summer. Neglect during the outdoor season may cause serious harm. JAMESCURE, a preparation formerly used only by professional hair and scalp consultants, is now available for home use. Applied once a week for one month—then less frequently—it will be found effective in preventing the loss of hair; in the elimination of dandruff; in promoting the normal growth of hair through scientific stimulation of the scalp. Nor will you breathe the haunting fragrance of the well-known wildflower. JAMESCURE smells like the Maine woods on a brisk morning—and if you don't like that, you're crazy. Generous trial jar—enough for several months—mailed postpaid on receipt of 75c. If you want it C.O.D., there's an additional charge of 20c which must be enclosed with order. Obtainable only direct from the JAMESCURE LABORATORIES, 737 5th Avenue, New York.

ENHANCING THE BRUNETTE

SPARKLING eyes, dark, shiny hair, ruby lips and rose-petal skin—how vibrant and vivacious is brunette loveliness! The key to blonde beauty is delicacy, to brunette beauty it is depth. The darker the eyes and hair, the more they should be accentuated. The brunette is a vivid personality and her make-up and costume colors should enhance her individual charm. Also, she is wise to keep her hair dark and sleek, brushed to mirror brightness.

Although I am outlining suggested make-up shades, bear in mind these are arbitrary, not only because individual coloring varies, but also because when I say a "naturelle" or "rachel" shade of powder and a "raspberry" or "medium" shade of rouge, I mean the shades which most manufacturers call by those names. But, if we were to put all the "raspberry" rouges together we would find them varying from very light to very dark. Likewise with powder. That is why it is necessary to do personal experimenting.

Brunettes, like blondes, fall into several classes. We have:

THE ANGLO BRUNETTE, brown eyes and hair and ivory skin. Many who fall into this type call themselves "just brownies" or "in-betweens." Color is the very essence of the "brownie's" beauty. A medium raspberry tone of rouge and lipstick will not only deepen her own coloring, but will also add a sparkle to her eyes. Her powder should be a warm rachel shade. For evening, a blue or green eyeshadow in artificial light is alluring, as is a touch of dark brown mascara on upper lashes. A bit of orchid or lavender powder blended with her daytime powder makes an enchanting effect for evening.

THE CELTIC BRUNETTE with blue eyes and raven blue-black hair and creamy skin. Color contrast is her boast. Either a vivid, violet red rouge of dark tones, or no rouge at all if her skin is quite clear and fair, but accents on the lips and eyes. A warm ivory or creamy rachel powder. Coral rouge for evening. Black mascara and deep blue eyeshadow.

THE LATIN BRUNETTE, dark eyes, dark hair and olive skin. A subdued orange-red lipstick and rouge of dark tones, powder to exactly match her skin, black mascara sparingly applied for evening and eyeshadow (it will surprise you) not black, but blue or green, preferably the latter.

If the skin is fair, accent the contrast between dark hair and fair skin by cosmetics and costume colors. Warm, vivid colors harmonize with the brunette's personality. My color chart will tell you what shades should be becoming to you. Send self-addressed, stamped envelope for it to Miss Elsie Pierce, Mid-Week Pictorial, 229 West Forty-third Street, New York, N. Y.
